Cavale Creative Company
Freelance Front End Web Designer Job Opening

Web Designer

Location: Remote/Telecommute. International applicants welcome.

In short, we're looking to expand our sub network, and we need folks who can primarily design and build killer websites.

Often, the aforementioned killer websites will be in the form of WordPress-based websites. So, it's critical that you're familiar with WordPress and feel pretty comfortable bending it to your will. Experience using popular page builders (like Elementor and Visual Composer) is a big plus.

You don't need to be a developer to do this job (we've got one of those on our team, she's a bad ass who can fix anything, she has your back). However, for you, a working knowledge of HTML and CSS will be fairly important.

Time for a list:

In this job, you will:

- Design websites, layouts, app interfaces and more. They will look fantastic.
- Help to build/code/assemble these things.
- Use WordPress, A LOT
- Collaborate closely with our team, including other designers, developers and project managers.

And you'll need:

- Killer design skills.
- A fundamental understanding of UX/UI principles
- Strong ability with Adobe software, particularly Xd, Ps Ai and Id.
- An in-depth and readily accessible cache of movies quote stored in your brain.
- Functional knowledge of HTML and CSS.
- Experience with WordPress page builders, particularly Elementor.
- An appreciation for both $7 coffee, and $0.25 coffee.

We know what you're thinking. "Hey, this sounds exactly like the type of stuff I love to do! In fact, I love it so much, I'd do it for free!" Well, guess what: you won't have to.

That's right, we pay our subs.

No, no it's not too good to be true.

To get started, send an email to Nicole@Cavale.io. Use the subject line "Allow me to make your dreams come true" If you don't use that subject line, you won't get the job. Be sure to include a link to your portfolio.

Hugs and kisses.

cavale
creative